

De-Globalization, Re-Nationalization, Rising Populism – Oh My!

April 3, 2017

London ON –Are you wondering what the implications are of Brexit and the election of Donald Trump for Canada and the world? Two student groups at King's University College is pleased to welcome to campus a round table discussion focused on different trends in the global political economy and what those trends indicate for the future of global trade and the resilience of neoliberal globalization.

All are welcome for this roundtable discussion in the Vitali Lounge, 266 Epworth Ave, London on April 4, 2017 at 5:30 p.m. for a with six International Political Economy (IPE) experts. The event is organized by the King's Political Science Students Association and the King's Economics and Math club.

The panellists are: Adam Harmes, Associate Professor at Western University; Erin Hannah, Associate Professor and Chair of Political Science at King's University College; Eric Hellenier, Professor of Political Science and Faculty of Arts Chair in International Political Economy at Waterloo University; Silke Trommer, lecturer in Politics at the University of Manchester; Louis W. Pauly, Canada Research Chair in Globalization and Governance and Professor and Chair of Political Science at the University of Toronto; and Amy Wood, King's Alumna and Trade Researcher at the Council of Canadians and PhD Student at the University of Toronto.

The event is free and open to the public. Please register at www.deglobalizationatkings.eventbrite.ca.

King's is a publicly funded Catholic post-secondary institution founded in 1954. King's provides general and honors degree programs in the liberal arts, social sciences, business, and a master's degree in social work. It is positioned in the top rank of institutions of higher learning in Canada for the high quality of its teaching faculty and student experience. Institutionally autonomous, King's is academically affiliated with Western University. King's is open to students of all faith backgrounds, with its community centered on the values of social justice, equality and the education of the whole person.

For more information, please contact:
Taylor Rummell
Communications & Media Relations Intern
King's University College
taylor.rummell@kings.uwo.ca
@kingsatwestern
519-854-8941
www.kings.uwo.ca