This is a different kind of history course.
It empowers students to understand the historical roots of current events, while applying historical methods, ethical reasoning and effective advocacy to address real-world humanitarian and policy challenges of today and tomorrow.

Topic for 2019:

Can the world stop genocide?
(The Economist, Dec 8\textsuperscript{th}, 2018)

General Info:
- Open to all students (contact R. Ventresca to confirm eligibility/special permission: rventres@uwo.ca)
- Fall Term 2019 (Sept-Dec.)

Source: Hundreds of thousands of Rohingya have flooded into southern Bangladesh. The north-south highway between Cox’s Bazar and Teknaf is a steady flow of Rohingya refugees, September 2017. —Greg Constantine, US Holocaust Memorial Museum