

KING'S

Economics and Finance

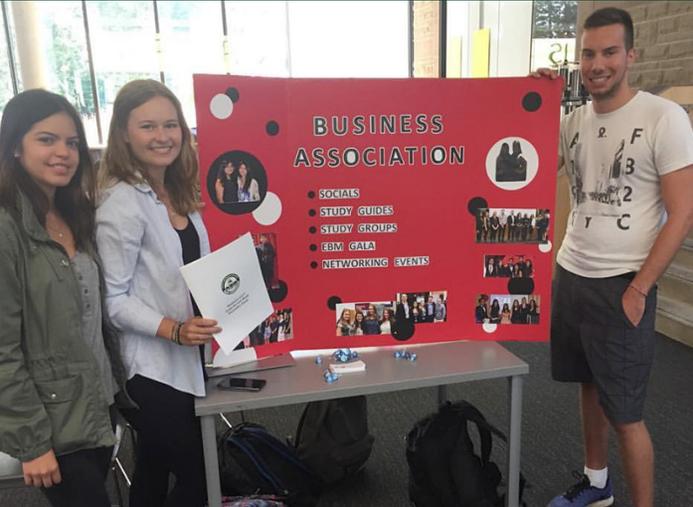

School of MEM

King's proudly announces our newly-formed "School of Management, Economics, and Mathematics" (the School of MEM for short). This rebranding allows us to maintain the independence of our three departments while highlighting the professional orientation of our programs. We provide students with a leading undergraduate experience through our two programs: Bachelor of Arts in Economics and Bachelor of Management and Organizational Studies – both with several program streams.

School of Management, Economics, and Mathematics

A Place to Be. A Place to Become.

School of Management,
Economics, and Mathematics

What sets us apart!

In the first year of studies, economics and finance students receive a broad liberal arts education that provides a foundation for future studies. Second year provides a thorough grounding in the fundamentals of economic and statistical theory, as well as the opportunity to explore a number of options. Third and fourth year students explore a more specialized curriculum designed to bring students closer to the leading edge of current understanding in economics, finance, or financial economics. Many students take advantage of a unique opportunity provided by our Economics program to complete an undergraduate thesis based on an original research project guided by a faculty member. Students also have the option of pursuing internships, and the opportunity to study abroad. Through these experiences, students can stretch beyond mastery of individual course content to discover how each element of an applied project fits into the bigger picture.

The Program

Students can work towards a Minor, a Major or a four-year Honours Specialization in Economics, as well as a Major in Finance – a degree unique to King's. Those who choose to complete an Honours Specialization in Economics typically proceed to graduate school, and with significant success.

"The Economics program at King's has been extremely rewarding for me. The program, along with the many extracurricular opportunities available through it, helped develop my character and skill set. It was especially helpful in preparing me for the research component of my master's program at the University of Toronto. The program, the environment, as well as the professors and their willingness to help really helped shape my success thus far."
- Ester Gerassime '18, HSP in Economics
