PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS:

Philosophy at King’s helps you to know how to ask the right question at the right time.

Philosophy at King’s helps you develop your ability to deal with complexity and uncertainty.

Philosophy at King’s provides you with an understanding of the history of ideas and how you can create your own world and the capacity to critically think about what you need while at university, in your career, and throughout your whole life.

Philosophy at King’s has passionate, award-winning teachers who are also internationally recognized scholars in their fields.

Philosophy at King’s is a community of students and professors helping each other build a strong sense of self, a community where individuals are part of something larger than themselves, a community that helps individuals take the risks needed to discover what they are truly capable of.

Philosophy at King’s encourages you to live thinking and innovation so that you can develop your own philosophical voice.

Philosophy at King’s students explore contemporary issues that matter to them and to the world.

What is PHILOSOPHY?

Philosophy is the way to being well. It is not just an academic discipline. It is a way of life that helps you develop your own internal compass to orientate yourself to what really matters. Only by critically examining your own values and perspectives, can you come to a deeper awareness of yourself, others, and the world in which you live. Only when you come to see the big picture in all its complexity, ambiguity, and beauty, is why philosophy is said to lead you to begin and end your wonder. In Philosophy, you build your character, develop your own perspective, determine the values you truly stand for, and to better understand yourself. After all, the things that really matter in life. So what do you care about?
