

King's University College hosts Giving Psychology Away series

April 2, 2019

The Event: Giving Psychology Away Series, hosted by King's Psychology department, the King's Psychology Association (KPA) Club and the King's University College Students' Council.

The Series: Will showcase applications of psychology for the betterment of society via keynote addresses, awards, various discussion panels, presentations of student capstone projects, and more. The Penner Prize for community impact will be awarded from 8:30- 9:30 a.m. on April 3rd in Wemple Vitali Lounge and judged by community panelists Dr. Nonie Brennan, '84, CEO of All Chicago; Jodi Younger, VP of Patient Care & Quality at St. Joseph's Health Care; Lori Runciman, Director of Grants at London Community Foundation; Adrian Comeau, '17, Social Worker at Canadian Mental Health Association; and Adam Newton, '15, Course alumnus and Ph.D. Candidate in Clinical Psychology at Western University. The keynote addresses will include Dr. Loretta Norton, BrainsCAN Clinical Research Liaison and Dr. Claire Crooks, Director of the Centre for School Mental Health Western University.

The Quote: "King's psychology students, across the department, were challenged to use their knowledge and skills to make a difference in the community. The capstone projects they are presenting reflect their transition from studying psychology to doing psychology." Dr. Marcie Penner, Professor of Psychology at King's University College.
