

Brazilian Ambassador to tour King's

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE – May 27, 2013

King's University College will welcome Ambassador Afonso Jose Sena Cardozo, Consul General of Brazil, along with Raul Papaleo, President of the Brazil-Canada Chamber of Commerce, on Tuesday May 28th at 3 p.m. Joining them on campus will be Gerry Macartney, CEO of London Chamber of Commerce along with Joaquim Balles, Chair of the Chamber's Global Business Opportunities Council and Paulo Sylva, Chair of the Chamber's Brazilian Business Opportunities Committee. King's is a partner with the London Chamber of Commerce through the Global Business Opportunities Committee.

King's has hosted Brazilian exchange students for the past 10 years. This past academic year, three Brazilian students studied at King's. Many are drawn to the King's Bachelor of Management and Organizational Studies program.

"We appreciate the strong role which Brazil plays in the economy of the world. We are proud to help educate the next generation of Brazilian leaders," says David Sylvester, Principal, King's University College.

Dr. Sylvester will lead the visiting delegation on a tour of campus and provide a reception at International House, 238 University Crescent, a King's residence for exchange and international students.

Media can meet the delegation at 3 p.m. at Wemple building, 266 Epworth Ave, London or at the reception at 3:15 p.m.
