King’s University College celebrating new opportunities in Peru for King’s University College

For Immediate Release - March 29, 2019

London, ON – King’s University College at Western University is excited to announce an agreement with its first Peruvian university partner, Universidad Cientifica del Sur (located near Lima). The agreement promotes student and faculty exchange between the two institutions. Marilyn Mason, VP, Enrolment Services and Strategic Partnerships at King’s, will visit Lima from April 7-13, 2019 where she will be part of a formal celebration of the new relationship at the Canadian Embassy as well as at the Universidad Cientifica de Sur.

At these events, Cientifica will also be announcing their new academic program in which Peruvian students can complete their Ontario Secondary School Diploma (OSSD) at the university. Cientifica is partnered with Rosedale Academy, an online high school that offers the Ontario curriculum in a blended learning environment which combines in-class teaching and online learning. These students will earn the OSSD as well as complete the necessary English training to possess the required academic and language requirements for admission to King’s.

In recognition of this new shared initiative, King’s will announce at both events that graduates of the Cientifica-Rosedale OSSD program will be offered a Global Leadership Scholarship of $2500.00 (as well as any other academic scholarships for which they are eligible) when they are offered admission to undergraduate degree studies at King’s.

“We are so excited by our new partnership with Cientifica and are looking forward to welcoming students and faculty from Peru to King’s,” says Mason.
